MESSAGE

Achyuta Samanta Founder, KIIT & KISS

Education is the most powerful driver for effecting socio-economic change. Dreams of a New India can be materialized only on the strength of well-educated, skilled and energetic human resources. We will succeed only when education and its empowering benefits reach everyone, even the tribal (indigenous) communities who have historically been languishing behind the mainstream population in terms of literacy rate and other development indicators. Kalinga Institute of Social Sciences (KISS) works with the tribal communities, the most marginalized in the country, and helps them join the mainstream society using holistic education as the tool.

KISS had a humble beginning in 1992-93 and is now the world's largest tribal institute having 30,000 students. Over the last two and a half decades, our experience shows that these underprivileged children can also excel given the right opportunities. KISS has produced hundreds of inspiring success stories, in which students coming from extreme poverty and the most unfortunate circumstances have achieved amazing feats. Our students have achieved accolades from India and abroad on different occasions. They have excelled in academics and co-curricular activities and have succeeded in breaking the cycle of poverty with the support of KISS. It is the constant endeavour of KISS to bring out merit in each and every one of them and make them empowered and self-reliant. Indeed, KISS has emerged as a unique model of empowerment through education.

KISS has a strong alumni body of 20,000 empowered youth, well placed and driving change for themselves, their families and communities. An additional 20,000 students are getting a new lease on life in the ten satellite centers of KISS in ten districts of Odisha. From a mere institution, KISS has now become a revolution in the lives of tribal people.

As an individual, I started with nothing in hand, except for my own experience of severe poverty and hunger and a strong passion to create a model to eradicate poverty and hunger through education. Today, this principle is the motto of each and every policymaker and country, including the objective of the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (UNSDG). KISS is the best model to fulfil all the objectives of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) in true sense and spirit. It is the biggest anthropological laboratory in the world. We have myriad tribes studying at KISS and their rich heritage, culture, music, dance and practices are documented, maintained and augmented in the most appropriate manner.

I am always grateful to the stakeholders of KIIT for their kind gesture to support KISS financially. I express my thanks and gratitude to all the well-wishers and contributors. We reciprocate their kind gesture with the prayers from the pure souls of 70,000 tribal children for their peace and prosperity.

Samanta's 'School of Thought'

"Giving quality education to the deprived is like giving sight to the blind."

"Poverty creates illiteracy, literacy removes poverty."

"Given opportunity, the weak too can excel."

"Continuation of beauty is more important than creation of beauty".

"In the present age, half education is more harmful than no education."

"Think – What I was, What I am, What I will be!"

"Be grateful, not ungrateful."

"I will serve the society selflessly. The society has made me what I am. I will pay back the debt, without being complacent."

- To preserve tribal heritage, culture and values

Genesis

Achyuta Samanta, Founder of KISS had always nurtured vision of a world free from hunger, poverty, illiteracy and ignorance because he himself had to go through all these sufferings in his childhood. Untimely demise of his father when he was only four years old plunged the whole family comprising 7 siblings and widow mother into the mire of abject poverty and deprivation. With no fortune to fall back on, the family languished in their remote native village in Odisha and would often go without a square meal for days. The gruelling experience of his childhood had convinced the young Achyuta Samanta quite early in life that hunger, poverty, ignorance, and illiteracy kill people from within and further deprive them of livelihood earning skills.

With great hardship and struggle, Achyuta Samanta completed his Masters in Chemistry in 1987 and soon became an academic. But deep within his passionate heart, he cringed to do something to emancipate the poor and the deprived. His passion took him to the tribal hinterland where he travelled extensively and even stayed for days together among the poor and much alienated Juang tribal community in Keonjhar district and the Bhumija and Kolhas of Mayurbhanj district and watched from a very close range how the government and NGOs worked in their endeavour to develop the tribal communities. His first hand practical experience made him realize that lack of education was the sole reason why the tribal were not developing despite tremendous contributions being made by the Government and different NGOs. The tribal had a lifestyle of their own which had been solely dependent on the forests surrounding their habitat, but with gradual deforestation their very survival was at stake.

Enriched with wisdom derived from these experiences, the young academic Achyuta Samanta, with all his savings that amounted to only Rs. 5000/- (100 USD), was prompted to start a small training institute - Kalinga Institute of Industrial Technology (KIIT) in 1992-93 at Bhubaneswar in a rented building. He also set up another institute side by side, Kalinga Institute of Social Sciences (KISS) dedicating it especially for the basic education of the tribal children starting with 125 poorest tribal children. Achyuta Samanta's brilliant visionary mind knew right from the start that KIIT would sustain KISS as he himself had neither a fortune of his own to spare, nor any influential backing and banking support. KIIT has been deftly mentored by Samanta as a result of which it has consistently grown into a self-sufficient educational organization and nurtured the growth of KISS, from pillar to pillar. KIIT provided a sustainable financing and technically enabling model for KISS because living on donations, which would come by sporadically, could not have provided a sustainable source of finance and other resources. Since then, both the organizations are prospering impressively. KISS, the philanthropic spirit of KIIT and its founder Achyuta Samanta, today has student strength of over 30,000 of whom 60% are girls who receive holistic education from Kindergarten to post graduation and beyond with vocational training in a wide range of disciplines. KISS achieved a major landmark in 2017 when the Ministry of HRD, Govt. of India declared it as a Deemed University, making it the first tribal university in the world. Besides implementing the United Nation's Sustainable Development Goals, KISS has been able to bring about much needed social changes in the tribal hinterland of the state and its neighbouring states by arresting spread of Maoist and Naxalite insurgency in these areas and inculcating in the tribal minds a strong will to live life big. KISS, through its 30,000 students who come from as many families in different villages across the state, is indeed transforming tribal mindset and greasing their joining the mainstream society.

PLIGHT OF TRIBALS

- Tribal population of India is more than 102 million

The innovative pedagogy and thoughtful curricula adopted in KISS ensures zero dropout, whereas tribal schools in the tribal hinterland suffer from rampant dropout menace. Staying in the middle of the mainstream population has been providing the much needed confidence and acquaintance with skills of the mainstream for seamless coexistence. KISS students are excelling not only in their studies, but also in various extracurricular activities, particularly sports winning national and international recognitions. Students on their graduation find gainful employment on their own merit in different organizations at par with their counterparts from the mainstream society. Today they even look forward to higher education in professional domains such as engineering, medical, law, management, etc. KISS's success story has spread far and wide and has been bringing many inquisitive visitors including State and Country Heads, Diplomats, Nobel Laureates, Social Activists, Social Researchers and Scholars, Legal Luminaries from across the world to its campus at frequent intervals. World organizations like UNICEF, UNDP, etc. have also come forward to join hands with KISS in its endeavour towards economic and social emancipation of the tribal. Press and Media from across the globe have been publishing the saga of success of KISS.

The success of KISS has attracted the attention of planners and administrators of different governments within the country and abroad calling for replication of KISS in their respective areas. While a branch of KISS, KISS-DELHI, is operating successfully in the National Capital Region of Delhi with the collaboration of the Government of Delhi, plans are in the offing to open branches of KISS in all the 30 districts of the state of Odisha, 10 states in India and in 10 foreign countries. KISS's founder, Achyuta Samanta's has been propagating the KISS Model in different developing and underdeveloped countries in his bid to change the lives of the poor and the hapless throughout the globe. KISS has grown as an amazing social initiative and is catching the fancy of great thinkers throughout the globe.

Its holistic approach to education ensures that the focus is on all-rounded development of young tribal learners. It involves a variety of approaches to education, ranging from focus on quality academia, along side sports, skill training and extracurricular activities. During the students' early childhood, they are taught in their mother tongue to bridge the language gap that tribal students face while transitioning from diverse tribal languages (and their many dialects) to the state language of Oriya. KISS provides a platform to the students to interact with national and international dignitaries, academicians, policymakers, leaders, Nobel laureates, journalists, lawyers, bureaucrats, actors, sportspersons, writers and much more. This helps students identify role models while giving them global exposure. The approach ensures sustainability and preserves and disseminates tribal knowledge and culture.

Social Innovation - Educate, Enable, Empower

Social Innovation is an efficient and sustainable solution to a social problem. By providing holistic free education as the solution to eradicate poverty, KISS provides a prime example of the success of Social Innovation. In the long term, it is hoped that this approach will reduce the problem of transmission of poverty to future tribal generations.

Past Recipients of KISS HUMANITARIAN AWARD

“Achyuta Samanta is a great humanitarian who loves people and deserves to give humanitarian award. For me, this prize is no less than the Nobel Prize.”
- His Holiness The 14th Dalai Lama

The trophy with a golden shine is structurally comprised of a pair of hands upholding a heart that bears a smear of a multitude of waving hands. The pair of hands in the upholding gesture and the large heart represent compassionate service to humanity providing power, knowledge, and capacity to a multitude of hapless hands around the globe. The overwhelming presence of hands in the trophy quintessentially symbolize work (Karma), fate, blessings, destiny and felicitation while the single pair of hands upholding the heart depict how the art of giving can enable even a single pair of dedicated hands to create ripples of change in the lives of the helpless many. The shining golden colour of the trophy stands for virtues of purity, altruism, prosperity and hope.

KISS Humanitarian Award is a celebration of the struggles of extraordinary human beings who try to alleviate suffering from the face of the earth.

KISS Satellite Centres

KISS has been recognised as an internationally replicable model of empowerment of indigenous (tribal) people. A branch of KISS was started in Delhi in 2013. The State of Odisha has a high concentration of tribal population, constituting about one-fourth of the total population. Like the rest of the country, they lag behind the mainstream population in terms of education and other development indicators. In view of this, KISS had planned to start its satellite centres in 20 districts of Odisha. Five branches of KISS have already started functioning in Mayurbhanj, Balangir, Kalahandi, Balasore and Cuttack districts. Work has been completed in another four branches and they will soon become operational in Boudh, Kandhamal, Ganjam and Keonjhar districts. All remaining satellite centres will become functional by 2022. Work is also in progress to set up satellite centres of KISS in 10 states and 10 foreign countries.
